EDITORIAL

It is a great pleasure to welcome you to the “world” of the Journal of Geomatics and Environmental Research (JOGER), a publication of the Department of Surveying and Geoinformatics, Faculty of Environmental Sciences, University of Ilorin, Nigeria. This is the seventh edition of the journal, precisely Volume 8 Number 1. In this issue, you will find research and contributions that would be of great benefit to you.

This issue presents articles in the areas of GNSS research, Geospatial mapping, Application of GIS, Occupational Health and Safety Management Practices on Construction Sites, Assessing the Impact of Setback Enforcement on Commercial Property Values, and Land Information System.

The studies captured are Assessing the Relationship between GNSS-Derived Precipitable Water Vapour and Rainfall Trend in Nigeria, Exploring Absolute GNSS for Positioning without Internet Connectivity: Evaluating SPP and PPP Performance for High-Accuracy Applications, Mapping Vulnerabilities: A Geospatial Approach to Post-COVID-19 Tourism Planning in Ile-Ife, Spatial Distribution and GIS-Based Optimization of Commercial Egg Producing Farms: A Case Study of Ilaro, Yewa South LGA, Ogun State, Occupational Health and Safety Management Practices on Construction Sites in Kwara State, Nigeria, Assessing the Impact of Setback Enforcement on Commercial Property Values in Ilorin Metropolis, Nigeria, Impact of Market Rent on Housing Affordability for Local Government Employees in Mokwa, Land Information System: Case Study of Berry Court Estate, Olowora Phase 2, Omole, Kosofe Local Government Area, Lagos State, and Spatio-Temporal Assessment of Land Use-Induced Urban Heat Characteristics on Ecosystem Services In Ibeju Lekki, Lagos State, Nigeria.

We look forward to receiving your articles in subsequent editions of the journal. Thanks for choosing JOGER.
